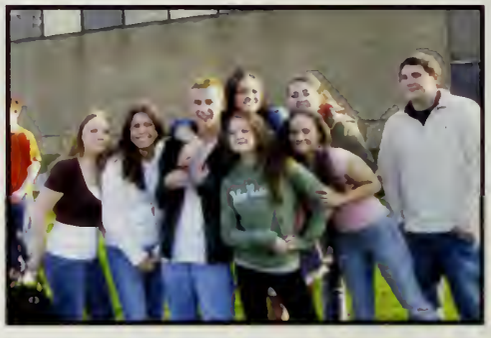
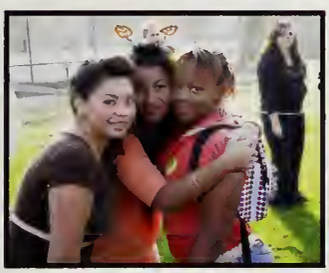
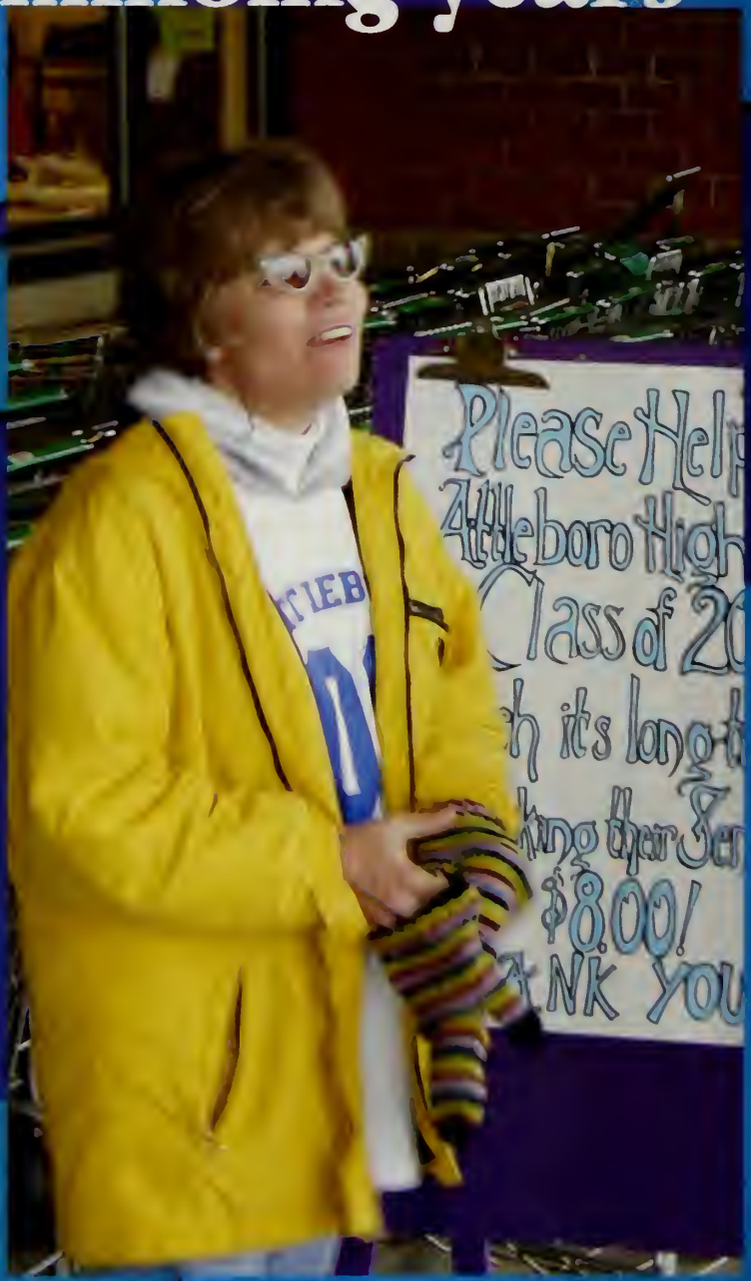
Class of 2008





2 dedic8ed advisors X 4 domin8ing years

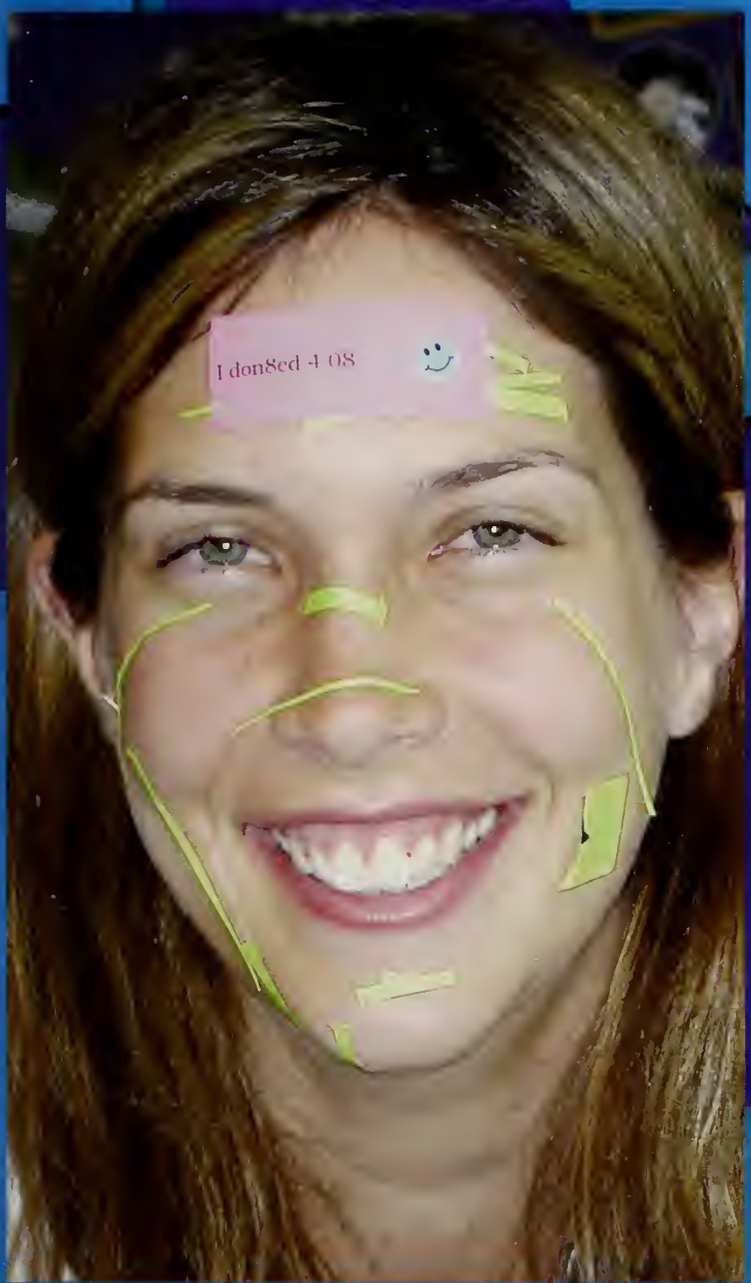
Ms. Rosa



You have been a tremendous asset to the Class of 2008. Whether you're teaching kids about gerunds, patrolling the A-building hallway outside of your classroom for kids on cell phones, or dancing around the classroom during class council meetings, you have always been there for your students to brighten their day. Your reputation really precedes you- past upperclassmen have told incoming freshmen to take English with the "awesome purple lady." Your vibrant classroom has become a landmark in the school for kids. You have encouraged kids to try their hardest. The dedication you have shown to the Class of 08 makes you stand out as a teacher and advisor. Kids can come to you for anything, whether it's help on a grammar worksheet, or a letter of recommendation for college. The contributions to our class have greatly helped us achieve our goal of an $8 prom. From 08408 to Incarcer8tion, you have run around behind the scenes (and in the cafeterias) to make sure that we would reach our goal. Because of that, we thank you. Thank you for all of your hard work and time to make the Class of 08 "the best class ever."

-The Class of 08

= '08 being gr8



Ms. Richard

It's safe to say that your immense presence has had a profound effect on the Class of 2008. On any given day you could be found in room 119A signing students out to placements, drowning in a classroom full of pumpkins, creating to-do lists, drafting crazy announcements (that sometimes make no sense), or teaching world history to the mischievous freshmen.

Speaking of freshmen, remember in 2004 when the Class of 2008 were freshmen and we came up with the ludicrous goal of senior prom tickets costing $8.00? Well, four years later, after sk8ing, incarcer8ing, 08408ing and definitely not h8ing, we have finally reached our long term goal. But we never could have done it without your help. So very simply we would like to st8 that to you this yearbook we dedic8, being our advisor was not just f8, so thank you! from the Class of 2008, you are so much more than gr8!

"Do not follow where the path may lead."

To the Class of 2008:

We entered Attleboro High School in 2004 as little freshman whose only present goals were to fit in and not do anything too embarrassing. As freshman we met our Class Advisors, Ms. Rosa and Ms. Richard, who introduced us to 08408 (a phrase we would not soon forget). These two were so instrumental to our high school careers for all they did for us, and c'mon, they got our senior prom tickets to be 8 dollars! Along with making sure we never see the number eight again without a little shudder, they made sure we got the most out of our high school experience, especially our senior year, and it is only right that they should be standing on the side line as we receive our diplomas on none other than June 8th. Among our freshman events, we "skated to the 80s" as a fundraiser, introduced the first annual Variety Show, and ended the year "decorated in style" at the Freshman Social. The Red Sox won the World Series for the first time in eighty-six years, and thankfully gave us something to put all out energy into aside from schoolwork.

Sooner than we knew it, we were no longer the babies of the school, and we finally started to find our places. We continued to keep our class active by fundraising for Hurricane Katrina, and creating birthday grams (which had a plug in the Variety Show involving Chris Laureano and a sombrero hat...yeah, let's just leave it at that...) We began thinking about the prospect of college, but it still felt more than a long time off. We were still underclassmen, and those thoughts were soon pushed to the backs of our minds and replaced by thoughts of two more years of fun. We brought that year to a close with the Sophomore Gathering at the Elk's, dancing the night away and just having fun, which is something we definitely know how to do.

Junior year, reality began to set in that we would need to start preparing for our futures, and talk of SATs and college tours became frequent. That year our class t-shirts and spirit gear sold to make Spirit Week one of the most active ones in years. We played a Powderpuff Football game against the Class of '07, and though we clearly lost, we looked GOOD doing it, not to mention our cheerleaders were named most spirited. We topped off this eventful year perfectly with a Venice-themed prom at Cristina's; we looked amazing, as did the Gondolas so labored over by our own hands. As junior year came to a close, there was no denying how our intelligent ways, helpful dispositions, and overall hotness were greatly impacting our school.

At last, our final year commenced, and we were on top of the world. Unfortunately, all those thoughts about college and that we had for so long now had to be put into action, and we became occupied with applications and spent months waiting for those particular envelopes. Luckily, it would all pay off in the end. Also, that year we dominated in the Spirit Rally, we Incarcerated and got our revenge on Mr. Tighe, though he did not take to it very well...We lost in Powderpuff again (We can thank Dara Edge for that one...haha) but we still looked good doing it, which is really all that matters, right? The Red Sox won the World Series again, meaning success for both the Sox and the Pats in our first and last years.

We've made lifelong friends, had unforgettable moments, and made decisions that will affect us for the rest of our lives. We've met teachers who amaze us and inspire us with their knowledge and their ability to actually be pretty cool, despite what we may say. As often as we complain how badly we want to get out of here, there is no denying that we all have something we will miss about this school and the people in it. And I am sure they will miss us equally as much; as our T-shirts said, we are unquestionably the best class ever. I want to wish our Class of 2008 the best of luck in everything we do (though I know we won't need it). I know that we are capable of doing truly outstanding things, so let's get out there and represent!

Yearbook was supposed to be a breeze this year. Mrs. Sawyer had a year under her belt already, we were using an online method for creating the Tattletale, and we had all new computers - talk about smooth sailing! We didn't take into account, however, that Mrs. Sawyer now had double the slobbering babies (slobbering, but adorable nonetheless), the online system didn't always let us access the yearbook, and our new computers only worked about 40% of the time. To help cope with the stress, Mrs. Sawyer force-fed us pizza, we zoomed down the hallways racing in our rolling chairs or making a train out of them (which Pauline is still bitter about because she had to pull everyone else down the halls), snapped shots of teachers strangling students, took trips to Capron Park, and constantly dipped into the jar full of stale candy or treated ourselves to Karin's Thin Mint cookies. We have a theory that this is why every one of our deadlines was missed. Betwixt the rare occasions when we actually did accomplish work: Erin would use the scanner to make replicas of her body parts, Pauline would spit ill raps about children's books, Alijah would serenade us with her rendition of Snoop's "Sensual Seduction" (once getting so into it that she ripped off her pants to better embody his essence), and were teased about how "'08 loves to procrastinate." Regardless of our shortcomings, we pulled through, and had a great year. The tedious task of uploading pictures, the bursts of laughter, and the yearbook itself would not have been possible if it weren't for our leader, our mentor, our muse...

We'd like to say thank you, and we love you Darbie!
